Do not forget

- Reports should be written in a formal style (complex sentences, non-colloquial English, frequent use of passive, linking words/phrases).
- Before you write your report you should think of who the report is being written by and who the report is addressed to.
- Give your report an appropriate subject title, then carefully plan the information you will present. Think of suitable subheadings, then decide on the information you will include under each subheading. Use linking words to join your ideas.

Dear Ms Rose
I am writing to apply for the post of accounts officer advertised in the Daily Mail of 25 May. Please find enclosed a copy of my CV. ①

Since graduating from Oak University, I have been working as assistant accountant for PMS Corporate Ltd.
I have become particularly interested in handling costing, budgeting and compilation of accounts. ②

I would welcome the chance to work as part of a small dynamic team where I could make a significant contribution while developing my skills yet further. I would be happy to show you a portfolio of my work. ③

I am available for interview next week and look forward to hearing from you. ④

Yours sincerely

Ben Brown

Dear Sir or Madam

I am writing to complain about the poor service provided by your train company. ①

Yesterday I travelled on the 8.20 from Oxford to London. Not only was the train ten minutes late leaving Oxford but we were further delayed at Reading and no explanation or apology was offered. Furthermore, the heating broke down and the train got cooler and cooler. I complained to a member of staff, who was most unhelpful and unsympathetic. ②

As a result of delays I missed an important meeting with a client, which caused financial loss and embarrassment. ③

In the circumstances I believe I am entitled to compensation. I look forward to hearing from you very soon. ④

Yours faithfully
Kim Lee

Most letters of complaint use formal language and are organised in a standard way:

Paragraph 1
explain why you are writing

Paragraph 2
explain what the problem is and describe any action you have already taken

Paragraph 3
say what inconvenience it has caused you

Paragraph 4
state what you want done about the problem
