

What is a Lesson plan?

- A lesson plan is a framework for a lesson
- A guide which helps execute a mission that is to be accomplished in the classroom with the children
- A lesson plan can be defined as a creative process which provides a framework for purposeful learning
- If you imagine that a lesson plan is like a journey, then the lesson plan is the map. It shows where you start, where you finish and the route you take to get there.
- Lesson plans are product of teachers' thoughts about their classes that they hope to achieve and how they hope to achieve it. They are usually in a written form.

- There are many different kinds of plans as there are teachers. Trainee teachers often have to produce very detailed written plans, with descriptions not only of each activity but also listing the exact questions and instructions they will give the class as well as the timings for every activity
- In full-time teaching situation, it is impractical to expect teachers to plan with this level of detail each lesson they teach
- newly qualified teachers may rely on a less detailed, but still fairly comprehensive written plan.

- As teachers gain experience and confidence, planning is just as important, but teachers develop their ability to plan much quicker and with less need for detail.
- Very experienced teachers may be able to go into a class with just a short list of notes or even with the plan in their head.
- Whatever the level of experience though, it is very important that all teachers take the time to think through their lesson before they enter the classroom

Why lesson planning is important

- Imagine starting a journey but with no idea where you are going. You are the driver of a bus full of students and although you know you have to drive them for a particular period of time, without your map you have no idea where you want to or how to get there. It may still be an interesting journey but it would be very easy to get lost and our passengers would not be very happy.
- Without some kind of planning a lesson would be just as chaotic and could leave the students with no clear idea of what they were doing or why.
- This kind of uncertainty is not good for effective learning or class discipline.

- One of the most important reason to plan is that the teacher needs to identify his/her aims for the lesson
- Planning is a sign of professionalism. Students expect teachers to be professional. If you are prepared, the students can tell. They also know if you are not prepared – planning is a way to help gain the respect of your students
- By planning you are considering your teaching situations and your particular students. However, good your teaching materials or course book may be, it is unlikely that it was prepared for your particular students.

- Planning gives you the opportunity to tailor your material and teaching to your class
- Planning gives the teacher a chance to predict possible problems in the class and think about ways to deal with them by thoroughly researching and being prepared for the difficult questions. This makes the teacher feels confident in the class
- If you imagine the lesson as journey, then the lesson plan is like a map

- Lesson plan is important for:
 - A newly trained teacher who could be faced with varied unpredictable situations
- Lesson plan is important throughout the service of a teacher. Every class or generation of students offer different experience to the teacher
- Teachers who want to reduce over reliance on textbooks and to adopt

- Lesson plan comfortably aligns classroom instruction with curriculum goals and objectives.
- Lesson plan serves as a checklist that guides teachers to be systematic in the delivery of their lessons. Teachers know what to do next at every point of delivery. Lessons are orderly presented
- Lesson plan serves as a historical document of what the teacher did in class. The teacher is able to look back, recognize and update his lesson for future usage

- Lesson plan prevents over reliance on textbooks as a direct material for teaching.
- Some books are written in such a way that they serve as guide to teachers.
- Teachers are tempted not to initiate their own lesson plan
- These kind of teachers become limited since no textbook provides solution to all the specific needs in a lesson for the teacher and students.
- This show that even in the availability of good course material, the teacher still needs a lesson plan

- ▶ Lesson plan gives the auxiliary teacher the details of what he /she needs in a lesson
- ▶ If every good game deserves a plan to win, then every teacher needs a good plan to be highly successful
- ▶ The best football coaches still draw their plan for every match
