

Corruption

The use of power for personal interest or gains is termed corruption. It is a common problem that leads to various other serious issues. Corruption occurs at various levels in our country. From the general public to the political leaders to the big businessmen, everyone contributes to this problem and makes it bigger by the day. There may hardly be a person in our country who may not have adopted corrupt means to further his interest. Even if it is the smallest act of corruption such as bribing the traffic police for breaking traffic rules it is still wrong and is a stepping stone for bigger acts of corruption. People, in our country, often crib about political leaders misusing their power for personal gain not realizing that they indulge in small corrupt practices to further their interest. Each individual must act responsibly and stop such acts to contribute their bit towards eliminating corruption. The government must also keep a check on such illicit activities to overcome this problem.

Social Media

Social media is a huge contribution to modern technology. There are lots of online platforms based on social connections and interactions. Facebook and Twitter are the two leading platforms for the entire world. Anyone can join and sign up on these platforms for free. They have changed the business module. Now people are relying on the internet before buying something. They love taking a look at reviews and what people are talking about this product. Social media is a good place for this. It has been an amazing way of entertainment and communication with the business. People can make new friends and can get connected with people from overseas. It brings lots of opportunities to share and exchange culture and skills. It has some bad sides too. Some young people get addicted to it and spend too much time. It might hamper their study. That's why we need to use this technology for positive reasons.

PUACP

Pollution

Man is the best creation of nature. As long as man does not tamper with nature then his life remains civilized and comfortable. But in this age of science, where humans have got some boons, they have also been given a curse. Pollution is a curse for a creature born out of the womb of science, which most people are forced to bear. Pollution has become a serious problem today. This is a matter of great concern for those who are nature and environment lovers. Pollution has affected not only the human community but the entire living community. Its side effects can be seen all around. Pollution has increased so much in the last few years that it will be difficult to imagine human life in the future.

“Dearness/Rising Prices/Inflation”

Inflation ordinarily means the abnormal price hike of goods. In economic terms, inflation or rising galloping prices is the result of an increase in the supply of money than the supply of goods. But countless factors cause price hikes in any country. In our country, we see how fast our population is rising and how much more the people need in terms of food, fruit, clothes, shoes, soap and other articles of daily use. Our farms and factories are not producing food and goods according to the growing needs of the people. The second cause of inflation or rising prices is a rise in the standard of living of the people. With the greater demand for clothes, shoes, fine food, and other commodities (articles), their prices register a constant rise. Thus, a rise in the incomes of the people is also a sure sign of an increase in demand for goods that results in price hikes too. The third cause is the decrease in exports and increases in imports as it is happening in our country. When we buy more and more things (commodities) from other countries and sell less. The only solution to this giant problem of inflation is greater agriculture and industrial production, greater exports, and lighter taxes.