Q.2: What strategies will you employ in delivering a good oral presentation?

Ans: Common sense would suggest that a motorcyclist is not better off than a car owner. But this motor cyclist has been buying petrol- an expensive fuel, while the car owner has had the luxury to switch to a cheaper fuel- compressed natural gas- normally known as CNG.

As interesting as this debate is, it has badly failed to stir up a change to what has taken place. And more importantly it has quashed the very belief of CNG being a poor man's fuel. CNG by all means is a blanket subsidy on a fuel that is scarce not only during the winters now, but all the year round.

Experts have long argued that the use of CNG in the transport sector should be regulated, especially when the country's gas reserves are depleting fast. Setting priorities under gas shortage have taken a backstage every now and then with more political motives than economic rationale behind it.

Q.3: Depriving the CNG stations of gas has not solved the problem so far. Cars still pile outside the CNG filling stations hours before the advertised time. What is required is a change in how policy makers take up the challenge. It should be about a complete phase-out programme that eventually shrinks the usage of the scarce resource against excessive sales during defined time period.

- ✓ Why is CNG not quite the poor man's fuel? (5)
- ✓ Why do cars pile out the CNG filling stations hours before the advertised time? (5)
- ✓ What ways would you suggest to solve the problem of CNG? (5)

QUESTIONS WITH SHORT ANSWERS

- Q1 Read the passage carefully and answer the following questions. (20)

Whether the subjects of study should be taught in English in our educational institutions or through the medium of our mother tongue is an important concern of our policy makers. There are quite a few points to be considered in this connection. Those who oppose the introduction of English as a medium of instruction think that students do not properly understand the subjects taught in English. When they are not able to understand a point properly, they are evidently unable to express it clearly. Once asked to write the answers in English they are unable to do it effectively. Hence they may develop a sort of inferiority complex despite the fact that the trouble they experience is natural to any learner of a foreign language. Without support, this may mar intellectual development and as a result their personality may remain undeveloped. Those who favor using English as a medium of instruction point out the lack of appropriate vocabulary in native languages. They are of the opinion that the present body of knowledge and sciences is predominantly available in English and thus we must prepare our students to benefit from it otherwise they may never be able to practice contemporary knowledge in sciences and humanities. This however does not mean that we abandon our native tongues altogether. No nation has genuinely progressed by using a foreign language exclusively. Our native languages possess and encompass our identity and our past. Without access to our native languages we lose a sizeable chunk of ourselves; without access to a world language, we disconnect ourselves with the present and probably future too.

Questions:

- ✓ Suggest a suitable title for the passage.
- ✓ What is the argument of those who oppose English as a medium of instruction?
- ✓ Why is it difficult to use native languages for instruction?
- ✓ Why are native languages important?
- ✓ What do you think should be our strategy?

QUESTIONS WITH SHORT ANSWERS

Q:- 1 Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given at the end. (20)

Teaching, more than most other professions, has been transformed during the last hundred years from a small, highly skilled profession concerned with a minority of the population, to a large and important branch of the public service. The profession has a great and honourable tradition, extending from the dawn of history until recent times, but any teacher in the modern world who allows himself to be inspired by the ideals of his predecessors is likely to be made sharply aware that it is not his function to teach what he thinks, but to instil such beliefs and prejudices as are thought useful by his employers. In former days a teacher was expected to be a man of exceptional knowledge or wisdom, to whose words men would do well to attend. In antiquity, teachers were not an organised profession, and no control was exercised over what they taught. It is true that they were often punished afterwards for their subversive doctrines. Socrates was put to death and Plato is said to have been thrown into prison, but such incidents did not interfere with the spread of their doctrines.

Questions:

- 1- Suggest a suitable title for the passage. [2]
- 2- What were the teachers supposed to be in old days? [3]
- 3- Why were Socrates and Plato punished? [4]
- 4- What is the function of a teacher now-a-days? [3]
- 5- Give in your own words the definition of education. [3]

QUESTIONS WITH SHORT ANSWERS

Q:- 1 Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given at the end. (20)

Moral self-control, and external prohibition of harmful acts, are not adequate methods of dealing with our anarchic instincts. The reason they are inadequate is that these instincts are capable of as many disguises as the devil in medieval legend, and some of these disguises deceive even the elect. The only adequate method is to discover what are the needs of our instinctive nature, and then to search for the least harmful way of satisfying them. Since spontaneity is what is most thwarted (prevented) by machines, the only thing that can be provided is opportunity: the use made of opportunity must be left to the initiative of the individual. No doubt considerable expense would be involved; but it would not be comparable to the expense of war. Understanding of human nature must be the basis of any real improvements in human life. Science has done wonders in mastering the laws of the physical world, but our own nature is much less understood, as yet, than the nature of stars and electrons. When science learns to understand human nature, it will be able to bring happiness into our lives which machines and the physical sciences have failed to create

Questions:

- 1- Suggest a suitable title for the passage. [2]
- 2- What is the adequate method of dealing with our rebellious instincts? [3]
- 3- What is the part played by opportunity? [3]
- 4- How can we improve human life? [3]
- 5- How can science help humanity to achieve happiness? [4]
- 6- Make a precis of the above passage. [5]

QUESTIONS WITH SHORT ANSWERS

Q.2. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given at the end. (20)

To be a good teacher, you need some of the gifts of a good actor. You must be able to hold the attention and interest of your audience; you must be a clear speaker with a good pleasing voice and you must be able to act when you are teaching in order to make its meanings clear. Watch a good teacher, you will see he does not sit motionless before his class; he stands the whole time he is teaching; and he walks about using his arms, hands and finger's to help him in his explanation and his face to express his feelings. Listen to him and you will hear the loudness, the quality and the musical note of his voice always changing according to what he is teaching. But the fact that a good teacher has some of the gifts of a good actor does not mean that he will indeed be able to act on the-stage, for there are very important differences between the teachers' work and actors' work. The actor has to speak words which he has learnt by heart, he has to repeat certain dialogues which he has learnt earliest. Even his movements and the ways in which he uses his voice are usually fixed- before. The good teacher works in a different way because his audiences take an active part in his play. They ask questions, and if they do not understand something, they will say so. So the teacher has to suit his act to the need of his audience that is his class. I know many teachers who were fine actors in the class but were unable to take part in a stage play because their brains would not keep strictly to what another had written.

Questions:

- 1- Suggest a suitable title for the passage. [2]
- 2- What is the difference between a good teacher and a good actor? [4]
- 3- What is the role of teacher in nation building? [3]
- 4- How can a good teacher be compared to a good actor? [3]
- 5- Who, according to you, is a good teacher? [3]
- 6- Make a precis of the above passage. [5]

Q.2. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given at the end.

Very few students have really any clear idea of what science mean. The teaching of science in schools tend to obscure the meaning of science. When pupils at school work for a pass in science subject, they regard it their main business to learn a large number of facts and a smaller number of principles and theories. Now all this is good in its way. A scientist must have a certain number of facts, principles and theories at his fingertips. But science would cease to be science if scientists merely worked from fixed sets of facts and theories. The essence of science is the gathering of new facts and the establishment of new theories. Science has advanced rapidly in recent history because scientists have been greedy for new knowledge, and because they have been so ready to disbelieve in textbooks of their youth. It is, therefore, most important to give our young students of science an awareness of skepticism and open-mindedness that is part of the very soul of science. Let them not think that any branch of science is a subject that one can sit down and learn. Let them realize that science is essentially a creative activity.

Questions:

- 1- Suggest a suitable title for the passage. [2]
- 2- When does science cease to be science? [3]
- 3- What are the two causes of the advancement of science? [4]
- 4- What should we teach to our students of science? [3]
- 5- How is teaching of science in schools described in this passage? [3]
- 6- Make a precis of the above passage. [5]
