

Science :-

Science is the systematic way of acquiring knowledge through observation, experiment and evidence-based reasoning.

• Natural Science :-

Natural Science is the branch of science that deals with the study of physical world.

e.g = Physics, Chemistry, Biology etc.

i. Physical Science :-

Physical Science is the branch of science that concerned with the study of inanimate natural objects.

e.g = Physics, Chemistry, Astronomy etc.

ii. Biological Science :-

Biological Science is the branch of science that concerned with the study of living things and how they work.

e.g = Animals, Plants, Bacteria etc.

• Social Science :-

"Social Science is defined as the scientific study of social relationship's and human Societies."

i. History:-

"History is the branch of social Science that studies the development, structure and interactions of human societies and cultures in the past."

ii. Economic's:-

"Economic's is the branch of ^{Social} science that studies the development, distribution and assumptions of goods and Services."

iii. Statistic's:-

"Statistic's is the branch of ^{Social} science that collects, analyzes and interprets the numerical data to understand social phenomena and make informed decision."

iv. Political Science:-

"Political Science is the branch of ^{Social} science that studies government, Politics and Policy making."

v. Anthropology:-

"Anthropology is the branch of social science that studies human cultures, behaviors and Biological characteristics."

vi. Education:-

"Education is the branch of social science that studies the process of teaching, learning and examine how individuals and societies acquire knowledge, values, and skills."

vii. Sociology:-

"Sociology is the branch of social science that studies human behaviors and relationship."

viii. Criminology:-

"Criminology is the branch of social science that studies crime, its causes, consequences and prevention."

CHARACTERISTICS:-

- i. Focus On people and Society:- Social Science looks at how individuals and groups behave, how they form relationships, and how societies function.
- ii. Understanding Social Structure:- It examines the rule, role and norms that shape our daily lives, such as family roles, educational systems and law.
- iii. Exploring Cultural differences:- Social Science help us understanding the diverse cultures, traditions and beliefs that exist around the world.
- iv. Studying human behavior:- It investigates why people act the way they do, both individually and within groups.
- v. Improving Society:- By understanding social issues like poverty, inequality, and crime, social science aims to find solution to improve communities and quality of life.
- vi. Problem Solving:- Social Science seeks solutions to societal issues such as poverty and inequality.

Development :-

- The development of social science began in the 17th century and continue to evolve until the 19th century. During this period, various discipline such as sociology, anthropology, economics, psychology emerged and developed their own methodologies and theories.
- The (17th - 18th) Centuries, saw the rise of Enlightenment thinkers such as Rene Descartes, John Locke and Immanuel Kant, who laid the foundation for modern social thoughts which influenced the development of social science.
- By the late 19th Century, Social science become a recognized field of study, with its own distinct disciplines and approaches. Its development continue to this day, with ongoing debates, new methods and emerging areas of study.

Twin Revolution :-

“The twin revolution refers to the simultaneous occurrence of two significant transformations French and industrial revolution”

French revolution :- (1789-1799)

"A great revolution that took place in France, transforming its political, social and economic structures."

- Ended French monarchy.
- Established a republic.
- Recognized human rights and freedom.

Industrial Revolution :- (18th - 19th centuries)

"A period of significant technological, economic, and social change, marking the shift from manual labour to machine-based manufacturing."

- Shift from manual labour to machines.
- Introduced steam power and machines.
- Developed textile and iron production.
- led to factories, mass production, and transportation advancements.

Era of enlightenment :-

"Era of enlightenment also known as the age of reason, was a cultural and intellectual movement that emerged in Europe in the 17th and 18th centuries. "

Key Points :-

i. Reasons and rationality :- Emphasizes on logical thinking, scientific inquiry and critical analysis.

ii. Individualism :- Focus on individual rights, freedom and autonomy.

iii. Humanism :- Interest in human nature, potential and achievements.

iv. Science and Progress :- Belief in scientific advancements and their potential to improve society.

➔ Positivism, Humanitarianism and Evolutionism are related to Era of Enlightenment.

• Positivism / Positivist :- Builds upon Enlightenment ideas of reasons, science and Progress.

• Humanitarianism :- Reflects enlightenment values of empathy, compassion and human rights.

• Evolutionism :- Emerged from era of enlightenment, scientific inquiry and

Date: _____

the concepts of progress.

Positivism :-

“Positivism, as a social approach, emphasizes the application of scientific and empirical methods to study and understand human society.”

Positivism was introduced by french philosopher Auguste Comte. In his theory he said that:

The valid knowledge is that which can be observed and measured scientifically.

- Empirical Observation
- Logical and mathematical treatment
- Rejection of metaphysics
- Scientific approach to social phenomena.

Humanitarianism :-

“Humanitarianism is a social approach that prioritizes helping people who are suffering, specially during conflicts and disasters.”

- It aims to save life, regardless of their circumstances.

- Staying neutral and avoiding taking sides or bias.
- Maintaining independence from governments, politics and ideologies.
- Protecting human rights and raising awareness about injustices.

Evolutionism :-

“Evolutionism is a social approach that views society as undergoing gradual, continuous changing and development similar to the process of Biological evolution.”

- Society undergoes gradual changes over time.
 - Society adapt to their environments and circumstances.
 - Society evolve through the transmission of cultural traits and practices from one generation to the other.
-

HISTORICAL CONTEXT:-

Social Science emerged during the enlightenment (17th - 18th centuries), emphasizing reason, and individualism. The industrial revolution (18th - 19th centuries) brought new social issues promoting thinkers like Marx and Durkheim to respond.

1. Social thought during Greek Period : 600 B.C - 100 A.D

Greek social thought was characterized by a profound exploration of unity, ethics, governance, and cultural expression, all of which have left an indelible mark on subsequent civilizations.

Thinkers:-

Socrates

(Emphasized individualism and self reflection)

Plato

(envisioned a just society with Philosopher-kings)

Aristotle

(Analyzed human nature, politics & social hierarchy)

→ Plato's Contribution :-

Plato's Contribution to social thought during this period:

i. Theory of justice :- Plato's Book The Republic explores the concept of justice and ideal society.

ii. Philosopher king :- Plato believed that philosophers should rule society, as they possess wisdom and knowledge.

iii. Concepts of form :- Plato's theory of forms posits that abstract concepts like justice and beauty are more fundamental than physical reality.

→ Aristotle Contribution :-

Aristotle contribution to social thought during this period:

i. Concept of mean :- Aristotle's idea of the mean emphasizes finding balance and moderation in life.

ii. Theory of human nature :- Aristotle believed that humans have a unique potential for rational thought.

iii. Politics and governance : Aristotle's idea of explore the ideal form of government and the role of citizens in society.

Plato's View on desire, emotions and knowledge

Plato's View on desire, emotions and knowledge

i. For modifying a person's personality.

i. Desire : Plato believed that desire can be either rational or irrational. Irrational desires can lead to conflict and instability.

ii. Emotion : Emotion should be guided by reasons and wisdom. Plato saw emotion as a necessary aspect of human experience.

iii. Knowledge : Plato's believed that knowledge is essential for human flourishing. Knowledge help us to understand the world around us and make a wise decisions.

According to plato's view, By modifying this concepts a person can develop a more balanced and and virtuous personality.

2. Social thought during Roman Period = 100 - 500 A-D

Roman period, was marked by significant social and philosophical developments. Roman thinkers influenced by Greek philosophy, stoicism and christianity, emphasized the importance of reasons, self control and morality.

→ Alexander the great : who conquered Greek culture and philosophy throughout his empire. His conquests facilitated cultural exchange and diversity, laying the ground work for Hellenistic thought.

→ Golden age : Roman empire also experienced a golden age, This period, which lasted from approximately 27BC to 180 AD, was marked by relative peace, stability and significant cultural achievements.
