

FEEDBACK:

Feedback is information or comments provided about someone's work, behaviour or performance.

It is helpful for authors in enhancing their ideas, improving clarity and refining their style. It can come from peers, teachers or supervisors and also serves as a tool for growth and development.

* Objectives of Feedback are:-

- i) Improvement in Performance or skill
- ii) Clarity in thoughts or action
- iii) Encouragement
- iv) Correction and Guidance for improvements
- v) Learning and developing for further growth.

* There are some several important characteristics of effective feedback:-

i) Constructive: It should be specific, actionable and focused on positive change.

ii) Timely: As the time span is less in today's world so the feedback should be given promptly so the work remain fresh in people's mind.

iii) Clear and Specific: It should be clear, precise and easy to understand.

iv) Objective: Feedback should be based on facts or observation, not on personal opinions or biases.

v) Balanced: It should highlight on both strengths and areas for improvement.

vi) Actionable: It should provide guidance, specific suggestions or steps on how to improve the performance.

* Types of Feedback:

- Positive feedback: You did an excellent job explaining the concept clearly.
- Constructive feedback: Your point is strong, but it would be more convincing if

- you add more examples.
- Negative feedback: Your argument lack proper passage.
 - Formative feedback: A teacher giving feedback on a draft before the final submission.
 - Summative feedback: A final performance is a type of summative feedback.
 - Peer feedback: A colleagues feedback on your presentation or idea.
 - Self feedback: Reviewing your own performance after a meeting to identify improvements for the next one.

* Feedback is crucial in the process of personal and professional growth.

Its importance includes, promoting learning and growth, building confidence, encouraging motivations, ensuring accountability, facilitating communication, fostering collaboration and strengthening relationships. Hence feedback is an essential tool in education, work or personal life.