

Introduction.

The study of rights and duties of citizenship is called "Civics".

Definition of Civics.

Civics is the study of the rights and duties of citizens, the structure and functions of government, and the role of citizen in shaping public policy.

Author Define :-

Aristotle :-

Civics is the knowledge of city state.

Bluntchill :-

Civics is a knowledge that is related to state.

(iii)

Oxford Dictionary:-

"The study of rights and duties of citizenship is called Civics."

(iv)

Put Becker:-

"Civics is the knowledge of city life and its philosophy."

Types of citizenship:-

Naturalisation

(By Birth) citizenship:-

Citizenship granted to individuals who have fulfilled specific requirements, such as residency and language proficiency.

(ii)

Active citizenship:-

Engaged and participatory citizenship, involving civic duties and responsibilities.

(iii) By Birth citizenship:-

Automatically becoming a citizen of a country where you were born.

(Auto)

Example: If you are born in the United States, you're a U.S. citizen by birth.

(iv) Digital citizenship:-

Responsible and ethical participation in online communities and digital space.

PUACP

(v) Participatory citizenship:-

Engaged and involved membership in a community or democracy.

(vi) Global citizenship:-

Recognized shared humanity and responsibilities beyond national borders.

= Etymology

The term "civics"
originates from the Latin word civitas, which relates to a citizen or citizenship.

The root word civis in Latin means "citizen". This connection to citizenship reflects the central focus of civics on the rights, duties and responsibilities of individuals within a society or state.

= Civic Engagement:

Civic Engagement refers to actively participating in the political, social, and community life of a society to address public concerns and improve the quality of life for all citizens.

Definition:-

Robert Putnam:-

Civic engagement refers to the ways in which citizens participate in the public life of their community, including voting and participating in public discourse.

=> Historical evolution of civic engagement/Participation

(i)

Ancient Civilization

While various civilization have contributed significantly to modern society.

(ii)

Medieval period

The Medieval period, also known as the Middle Ages, spanned from the 5th to the 15th century (approximately 500-

Enlightenment Era:

The Enlightenment Era, also known as the age of Reason, spanned from the late 17th to the early 19th century (approximately 1685-1815). Focus on personal rights, freedoms and autonomy.

* Nature & characteristics of civics

Here are ten key points about the nature and characteristics of civics:

(1) Educational Focus:

Civics is primarily educational, aimed at teaching individuals about their roles, rights and responsibilities within a society or government. It helps students understand the principles and functioning of democracy.

(ii) Rights and Responsibilities:-

It emphasises the balance between individuals' rights and civic responsibilities, highlighting how citizens should act to protect their freedoms while contributing to the common good.

(iii) Government Structure

Civics explores the structure and functions of government institutions, including the legislative, executive, and judicial branches, and how they interact to form a cohesive governance system.

(iv) Political Participation:

It covers various forms of political participation, such as voting, and public service, encouraging active involvement in democratic processes.

(v) Legal Framework:

Civics includes understanding the legal system, including laws, regulations and the constitution, and how they affect individuals and society.

(vi) Civic Engagement:

It promotes civic engagement by encouraging activities that contribute to community development and social well-being, such as volunteering and community organizing.

(vii) Ethical Consideration

Civics involves discussions about ethical issues and moral responsibilities related to citizenship, such as social justice, equity, and environmental stewardship.

(viii)

Historical Context:

It often includes historical perspectives on how civic practices and institutions have evolved, providing insight into the development of democratic principles and governance.

(ix)

Critical Thinking:

Civics encourage critical thinking and analysis of political and social issues, helping individuals to make informed decisions and form reasoned opinions.

(x)

Cultural and Global Awareness:

It fosters an understanding of cultural diversity and global viewpoints and participating in global citizenship.

Importance of Civics

Civics is important because it equips individuals with the knowledge and skills needed to actively participate in their government and society. Here are several reasons why civics matters.

i. Informed Citizenship

Civics education helps people understand the structure, functions, and process of govt at all levels. This knowledge enables citizens to make informed decisions, especially when voting or engaging in civic actions.

ii. Protecting Rights and Liberties:

Civics teaches individuals about their rights and responsibilities under the law. By understanding constitutional protections, such as freedom of speech, the right to a fair trial, and voting rights, citizens can safeguard these liberties and advocate for themselves and others.

iii- Promoting Civic Engagement:

Civic encourages people to participate in their communities and government. Civic engagement can take many forms, such as voting, volunteering, community organizing, or running for office. An engaged citizenry is essential for addressing societal issues and ensuring that the government remains responsive to the needs of the people.

iv- Strengthening Democracy:

A strong democracy depends on active informed citizens who hold leaders

Importance of Civics

Civics understand your rights and duties. you participate in democracy. you make informed decisions. you build strong communities.

Here are several reasons why civics matters:

i) Informal citizenship.

Informed citizenship means being a responsible and active member of a community or country. It's about understanding your rights, duties and how to participate in democracy.

ii. Protecting rights and liberties.

Protecting rights and liberties means safeguarding the fundamental freedoms and privileges that individuals have in a society.

There right include.
Basic rights

- ★ Freedom of speech.
- Freedom of assembly.

Civil Liberties

Right to vote. Right to ^{participate} fair trial.
Right to freedom from ^{unfair} discrimination.

(iii) Promoting Civic Engagement.

- * Strengthens democracy.
- * Empowers citizens.
- * Builds community.
- * Encourages participation.

(iv) Strengthening democracy:

Gives power to people.
Ensures fair decisions.
protects individual rights

(v) Encouraging critical thinking

Critical thinking is analyzing information evaluating evidence and forming opinions or decisions.

important

Makes informed decisions.
Solves problems effectively.
Enhances creativity.

(vi) Building Community and Social Cohesion.

Building community and social cohesion means creating strong relationships among people from different backgrounds.

(vii) ^{تقوية} Empowering change:

Empowering change means giving people the power and resources to make positive differences in their lives and communities.

* promotes equality and justice.

Relationship of civics with other social sciences

The relationship between civics and other social sciences are interconnected because civics draws upon concepts, theories and methodologies from these disciplines to understand and explain civic life, political participation, and the workings of society.

i. Civics and political Science

Relationship: Political science is perhaps the most closely related discipline to civics as both deal with the study of government, political processes, and the role of citizens in governance.

Example: Civics uses political science theories to explain how different political systems function.

ii. Civics and Sociology

Relationship: Sociology studies society, social behavior, and social institutions, which directly relate to the civic responsibilities and of individuals within a community.

Example: ~~Civics uses~~ sociological insights to explain how factors as social class.

iii. Civics and Economics

Relationship: Economics examines the production, distribution, consumption of goods and services, which are key to understand many civic issues such as taxation, public spending, and the allocation of resources.

Example: Civics incorporates economic principles to discuss to life government budgets.

iv: Civics and History

Relationship: History & Civics relies on history knowledge to explain the evolution of governance, constitutional and civil rights movements.

Example: Civics draws on historical events, such as the signing of Constitution or the Civil Rights Movement.

v: Civics and Law (legal studies)

Relationship: Civics is deeply connected to law as it involves the rule of law.

Example: Civics uses legal studies to teach students about the justice system, how laws are made and enforced.

vi: Civics and Anthropology

Anthropology studies human cultures and societies, offering insights into the cultural variations in governance, social organization, and civic participation.

Example: Civics may explore how governance systems differ from modern state-based systems.

vii- Civics and psychology:

Relationship psychology helps understand individual and collective behavior, including how people think about political issues make decisions, and engage in civic activities.

Example: Civics may use psychology concepts to analyze how social influences shape identity and participation.

viii- Civics and Geography:

Civics uses geography, examines the spatial distribution of populations, resources, and political boundaries, all of which impact civic.

Civics uses geographic insights to understand regional differences in governance, access to resources and political representation.

Example: Civics may explore how geographical factors like urbanization or understand regional differences in governance, access to resources,

Civics and philosophy:

Civics draws on philosophy debates about rights, responsibilities, and the role of government in ensuring justice fairness.

Example:

x: Civics and Education

Education is a key aspect of civics, as it plays a role preparing citizens for participation in public life.

Example:

Civics duties, and how to actively participate society.

Methods of Acquiring Citizenship!

Basically there are two methods of Acquiring citizenship of a state they are as following:

1: By Birth

2: By Naturalization

1. By Birth:

On the basis of birth acquiring citizenship is customary in the world of following three methods.

2. By Naturalization

If the born citizen of any state is willing to be the citizen of another state then he can apply for the nationality of that state. It is necessary to mention a reasonable base in the application for the acquisition of nationality.

i. Long stay:

If a ~~person~~ PERSON after giving up the stay of native state lives for a long time in another state, then he can obtain the nationality of the state. For example, to live in Britain and America consecutively four year the nationality is granted.

ii. Annexation:

If the part of a state becomes the part of another state through annexation that the inhabitants of the region are granted the nationality of other state. for example.

iii. Necessity a foreigner

If a woman gets married with a foreigner then she is granted the nationality of her husband. Similarly if a man gets married to a woman of another state then he can obtain the nationality of the state of his wife.

iv. State Jobs

If the citizen of a state gets the jobs of another state then he can gain the nationality of other state. for instance the foreigners doing the post job in Canada can get the nationality of Canada.

v. Buying property:

If the citizen of a state purchases property going to in other state, then he can gain the nationality of other state on the base of property.

vi. Business and Investment

If the citizen of a state does business going to other state and attaches himself through investment over there, then he can gain the rights of nationality.

vii. Adoption:

When the citizen of a state adopts the individuals of another state, then the adopted individual is entitled to the nationality of that state.

The relation between ✓ democracy and citizenship

The relationship between democracy and citizenship is deeply intertwined, as the principles of democracy shape and are shaped by the active participation of citizens. Democracy relies on the involvement of its citizens to function effectively, and citizenship, in turn, is defined by the rights and responsibilities within a democratic framework.

In a democracy, citizens have the right to participate in the political process through voting, running for office, and engaging in public discourse. This participation ensures that the govt reflects the will and needs of the people. For example, in democratic countries like the United States, citizens vote in elections to choose their representatives, influencing legislation and policy. Thus the relationship between democracy and citizenship is symbiotic.

Foundations of Modern Society and citizenship.

Concept of Modern society

Modern society is characterized by rapid technological advancement interconnectedness through digital communication, and a shift toward urbanization. It emphasizes individualism, consumerism, and the pursuit of economic growth.