

DAY: _____

DATE: _____

Samera Tahseen

Roll # : 22024

Biostatistics

Zoology 7th Semester

Data: The word data are derived from word "Datum" which mean single numerical fact and figures.

Is defined as:

"Numerical information collected for the purpose of study is called data."

Example: Marks of students of a class.

Number of road accidents in a city during a month.

Religion of people.

DAY: _____

DATE: _____

Hobbies of students of class.

Age of patients admitted in hospital.

Types of data: There are two types of data:

- Categorical data.
- Non-Categorical data.

Categorical data:

Categorical data are also called as qualitative data or attribute data.

It is defined as: Data can be divided into groups or classes on the basis of resemblance of common character.

It can be expressed numerically.

DAY: _____

DATE: _____

Example: Gender, color, religion, hobbies, educational standards.

Non-Categorical data: It also named as quantitative data.

It can be express numerically. It either count or measure in specific units.

Types:

→ Discrete data / Variable.

→ Continuous data / Variable.

Continuous data: Variables that can assume all possible variables. values in a given range.

It has infinite values. It has an error.

Age, Weight, temperature.

Constant:

It cannot be change.

It remains constant.

Variable:

It can be change.

It vary from person to person.

Example:

Days, name
marks name etc.

Age, height,
color etc.

Sources of Collection of Data:

There are two sources of data:

→ Primary Source.

→ Secondary Source.

Primary Source: It can be collected by survey, experiments observation and questioning.

It is ~~source~~ unorganized data.

It is 1st hand collected data.

Secondary Data: We called it second hand data.

Already collected by someone else, already used or organized.

Source: Books, magazines, internet and journals.